

The Port of Evansville is in the heart of Downtown Evansville, Indiana, and is located at Mile 793.1 on the Ohio River. This public general cargo facility is fully equipped to handle a wide variety of industrial and agricultural bulk commodities. The Port can be accessed via truck, rail, and barge with full transload services available. The Port has the ability to load or off-load up to six barges simultaneously along with the rare ability to load or off-load barges completely under roof inside the warehouse. With over 100,000 square foot of warehouse space and a bulk storage dome located on 17 acres, Northern Ag Service, Inc. has the capacity, crew, and equipment needed to handle your warehousing and transload needs.

Since 1982, Northern Ag Service, Inc. has been providing excellent service to our customers as a diversified agricultural and warehousing company. We are constantly seeking opportunities to expand our service and create WIN-WIN relationships with our customers!

AGRICULTURAL:

The fertile soils of the Ohio River Valley enable the production of millions of bushels of corn and soybeans annually and make Evansville an excellent outbound terminal for grain. While the Port of Evansville does have grain storage facilities, these are currently leased to a third party.
